

I Was A Prisoner of A Cop Who Wouldn't Let Anyone Leave The Office Christmas Party Until He Found Out Who Brought The Pot As A White Elephant Gift For 50 Hours

A Comedy Sketch Idea
by Jonathan David Steinhoff
©December 9, 2011

The title pretty much says it all. A comedy sketch done as a scene from a make-believe psycho-thriller, where the person who secretly brought the pot as a White Elephant gift keeps thinking to himself over and over whenever the camera is on his face, "How was I supposed to know Shelley's husband is a cop, and that she would bring him to the office party. How was I supposed to...."

The over-the-brink psycho cop is finally lulled into taking a hit of pot by his hostages, after which he anti-climatically releases them, wishing everyone a Merry Christmas. They of course cheerfully wish him a Merry Christmas back as they leave, looking somewhat the worse for wear after being prisoners for 50 hours.

"We'll all be home in time to celebrate Christmas Eve with our families!" is the closing line, as Christmas music fades up in the background.

The End